

The Princess Diaries

The name of the book suggests that this book is about a princess writing a diary.

The author's name is Meg Cabot

This book is kind of funny and romantic, because Mia (the main character) is really funny and is so not the person to become a princess. She always has messy hair and is not a great fashion girl. And then when she finds out she is going to be the Princess of Genovia, she needs to take princess lessons and that goes not really well.

The story happens in The United States, and also in Genovia because she becomes princess of Genovia.

This story is about a girl named Mia who lives in The United States, and has a best friend named Lilly. They two are not part of the popular group in school. Mia's mother starts to date her Algebra teacher and that gets sometimes really awkward. Then in the story Mia's grandma tells her that she will become the princess of Genovia and Mia is shocked. She takes princess lessons and some problems come up between Mia and Lilly.

The main characters are Mia, Lilly, Mia's mom and the queen, Mia's grandmother.

The author describes Mia as a really not popular girl who doesn't care about how she looks. Lilly kind of as a loser who also doesn't care about the look. Mia's mom like a really kind person who wants what's best for Mia. The queen as a perfect woman, everything around her has to be perfect.

The character's does develop through the book, Mia get's more princess like and learns how to talk slow like a princess, sit like a princess and she just really changes through the book, in a good way, she still makes jokes with Lilly and has fun like they did before.

There are no problems like unhappy childhood or someone is poor and has a hard life, everyone just lives a normal live. Though some are richer, everyone lives just a good life.

The message is just that the popular people in school are not always the best people, and always have a trusted and a real friend who strands with you, never let anyone make you do something you don't want or make anyone put you in a uncomfortable situation. Stand with yourself.

The most unattractive scene that coughed my attention was when a hair dresser, and makeup professional and fashion people changed Mia into a whole different person by her look, she got prettier and then everyone started to notice her in school and the popular girl started to talk to her and that was all because of her look.

The most attractive scene was when she broke up with the boy Josh Richter (most popular guy in school that all the girls wanted) because she just found out he was an asshole. Though she had dreamed about him since she saw him first.

My favorite character in the story has to be Mia because I could relate to her the most.

My personal opinion of the book is that this book is really good and attractive and I could relate to so much, and it's a perfect teenager book to read. And the title also just gives you a hint that it's going to be a good book, because who doesn't like princess books.

And yes it is worth reading, maybe if you're a girl and like princess books and stories then I think you would like it.
